TUESDAY EVENING, SEPT. 13

KEPT 1 WAILING DAY—A warm, dry atmosphere is not unhealthy, but when cloudy or rainy weather brings sultry air which dampens everything around us, the atmosphere may be loaded with the germs of disease, and fire is needed to destroy them. The walls, the ceilings and floors of apartments should never be allowed to become damp; sometimes when the warmth of the air is excessive fire is more necessary to protect us than in cold winter, and the rooms of a dwelling should never be left without the means of warming and drying. Investigations have shown that many of the most fatal diseases are caused by the germs of vegetable life, and that a humid atmosphere is more favorable for their propagation. It is, therefore, not surprising to observe that the great disease centers of the country and the world are seafaring places, and that the sailors of our selves from seafaring places, especially when families when we go to the oceans when around us. Apartments exposed to the radiation of the sun, may be less comfortable in hot weather than those from which the sun's rays are excluded, but they are more wholesome, and when contiguous houses are built closely together it is found that inmates of houses on that side of the street exposed to the sun are less liable to be affected, while the greater number of sick are always found where there is the least exposure to the great debugger—the sun.
